

I am opposed to the CBA petition to have the ban on Indiana's telephone privacy lifted. I will admit that I do not bank with these institutions, but even if they were my personal bank I would not want them calling me with my financial information via telephone. All issues or decisions they would call me for, should be things on written documentation. Any changes made to my account, services added, policies removed, should be done in person at my local bank, not via telephone. In addition, this only opens the door for others to call and will totally eliminate the purpose of this privacy act. I went online because I don't want solicitation calls made to my home. I have the items I want, and those I don't I will seek out on my own time. My personal time is my personal time. I don't want a phone call from Sears about insurance coverage that I don't need when I am having dinner with my family. Please do not reverse the Privacy act for Indiana.
